

plentyfishy

Do I have to include a tagline?

Copycat

Thankfully it is a little while since my last post. However, I am unable to leave this without comment. It involves the following post made on  by some oddball (remember he hides behind a plethora of user-names including female lesbians for reasons known only to himself as his real name is readily available to the public). This is the post:

/plentyfishy.files.wordpress.com/2015/03/linked3.jpg

Very clear, "Headteacher between 1991 to 1997". Very clear indeed.

Which is confusing given that on some other date he made this post:

</plentyfishy.files.wordpress.com/2015/03/deputy.jpg>

It is simply impossible for both of these posts to be true. The post hasn't been removed, because he can't delete posts that far back. The post above (amongst others) would seem to tell a different story.

So, there we have the man who is a Headteacher, but isn't a Headteacher. Hmm..... once again our fragrant friend achieves the impossible.

\(..../plentyfishy.files.wordpress.com/2015/03/tow.jpg\)

(With thanks to the other fish tank)

Comments on: "Copycat" (4)

Teach said:

March 10, 2015 at 8:02 pm

Is an Acting Headteacher a Headteacher? An Assistant Headteacher? A Deputy Headteacher? The clue is in the title.

★Like

Like

plentyfishy said:

March 10, 2015 at 10:58 pm

Nope. A Deputy is a Deputy. Does all the crap stuff the head can't be bothered with.

★Like

Like

Teach said:

March 10, 2015 at 8:57 pm

Why did you not publish my comment?

★Like

Like

plentyfishy said:

March 10, 2015 at 10:59 pm

Unlike yourself, I can't be clamped to the laptop 24/7 writing blogs and playing stealth games.

★Like

Like

 Follow

Follow “plentyfishy”

Build a website with WordPress.com